THE OCCIDENT,
AN AMERICAN JEWISH ADVOCATE
A MONTHLY PERIODICAL

Volume 5
The Dittings of Knowledge
By Isaac Leeser and Edgar Isherwood

TOL. I
Phila., Printed by H. H. Price and Co.
1850.

37

The Occident was a monthly periodical published in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1850. It was an American Jewish Advocate that focused on various topics related to Judaism and Jewish life.

The title page of the magazine features the name of the publication, "The Occident," and "An American Jewish Advocate." The volume and issue number are also indicated as Volume 5, No. 1.

The contents of the page include an article or feature titled "The Dittings of Knowledge," written by Isaac Leeser and Edgar Isherwood. The text begins with "The Dittings of Knowledge," followed by a series of paragraphs and sections.

The page also contains the address of the printer, "Phila., Printed by H. H. Price and Co.," and a page number, "37."
Two Are Better Than One, and a Thespiad Goats is not quickly wrapped.

The American Museum of Natural History, New York, NY, 2019

The Thespiad Goats is a unique and engaging exhibition that explores the natural history of goats and their role in human society. Through interactive displays and educational exhibits, visitors can learn about the diverse species of goats, their habitat, and their cultural significance. The exhibit features a variety of goats, including domesticated breeds and wild species, allowing visitors to explore the fascinating world of these fascinating creatures. Whether you are a goat lover or simply interested in the natural world, The Thespiad Goats is an experience not to be missed.