CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE

Prof. Michael Keren: Department of Political Science; head of the Institute for the Study of Jewish Press and Communications, Tel Aviv University.

Dr. Yaron Katz: Member of the faculty, Holon Institute of Academic and Technological Studies; author, It's a Sellers' Market: The Marketing of Politicians in the Media (1999).

Prof. Dan Orkin: Department of Theater Arts, Tel Aviv University; author, The Image of the Arab in the Israeli Theater (1996), and The Jewishness of the Israeli Theater (1998).

Prof. Gideon Kouts: Department of Jewish Media and History, University of Paris; editor, Re'eh, International Journal for Hebrew Research in Europe; Kol Yisrael reporter, France.

Dr. Uzi Elad: Senior lecturer, Departments of General History and Communications, University of Haifa.

Dr. Dana Arieli Horowitz: Lecturer, Political Science Department, Tel Aviv University; author, Romance in Steel: Art and Politics in Nazi Germany (1999).

Prof. Yehiel Szeinctuch: Yiddish Department, and Joseph and Eila Berman Chair in Research of Yiddish Literature, Hebrew University of Jerusalem; author of books and articles on Yiddish literature and culture in Poland between the world wars.

Dr. Dan Almagor: Lyricist; translator and researcher of Hebrew literature, language and the milieu of Eretz Yisrael in modern times.

Dr. Gabriel M. Rosenbaum: Department of Arabic Language and Literature, Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Prof. Hanna Adoni: Department of Communication and Journalism, Hebrew University of Jerusalem; past editor, Decusim Ahadim: The Israeli Journal of Education, Culture and Society.

Naomi Kessler-Feinstein: Doctoral student, Department of Communication and Journalism, Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Shlomo Bosid: Graduate, Department of Communication and Journalism, Hebrew University of Jerusalem; past head of research division, Onmanot Le'am.